THE CHICAGO PLATFORM.

Insemuch as the majority of the delegates to the democratic convention went to Chicago for the express purpose of committing the party to the free and unlimited coinage of silver without qualification or safeguards of any kind it is no surprise that the platform speaks upon the question with empared on the other hand, it is in the as un of a defi to all the world and implies an independence of the commercial world which cur famers more especially do not

The democracy would needlessly antagonize our grain and provision producers in the markers where they sell their surplus produce. Moreover, there is an intimation that, as Mr. Boies puts it, as between all silver and all gold as the metal for redemption-money the first named would be preferable. It will be seen that although the platform declares for the free coinage of both gold and eilver it does not necessarily mean bimetallism, since in any event silver must be coined. The difference between the Chicago and St. Louis platforms on that question is clear and distinct. The latter is for the coinage of both metals in a way that their parity as redemption money will be maintained under any and all circumstances.

The Wilson-Gorman tariff act is practically endorsed. Although the wording of that plank is vague, yet when taken in connection with the declaration on the income tax question, it is plain to be seen that the idea is to add to the free list and make up the dencit by the landing in this country of competing workingmen of that kind, but meatwhile the gates are to be opened wide to the importation of goods and wares that are produced by papper labor in other countries. The platform contains the usual democratic glittering but meaning less generalities, and the document shows that its making was in new and untried hands. It is just such a declaration of the principles as will require continued explanation by the party. In short, it is a piece of patchwork through-

BRYAN'S SPEECH WAS OLD.

Nebraska Men Say They Have Heard Him Make it 100 Times.

(From the New York Sun.)

As everybody knows, Bryan got the omination for president simply because he made a pretty good speech. Ever since the convention adjourned they been telling stories about that speech. It was delivered by Mr. Bryan off-hand, and was apparently an im-promptu affair. The chairman of the democratic state committee of Nebras-ka, the Boy Orator's own state, says that it was not only not an impromptu speech, but that it was a very old speech or rather a collection of very old speeches an's political speeches, and even as mosiae that it was not fresh.

This man says he has heard Bryan make the speech 100 times, that there was not a single new thing in it exceeps the introduction, and that had to be changed to fit the occasion. He also says that Bryan cannot make a speech

Well; I'm a convert. I varigated with bright colored flowers of almost every hue. The grass is growing nicely and the brilliant prospects for an excellent cattle season has brought a standing smile from all residents of that

> The interests of the town and cou are guarded by Mr. Don H. Kedzie, the editor of the Western Liberal. Mr. Kedzie is fully awake to the wants of his section and possesses the courage of his convictions, as is amply shown in the columns of his bright, newsy, interesting publication.
> There are six saloons in the town, and rhere are six saicons in the town, and probably the largest one, or the one which has the largest proprietor, is called the "No. 14." Its destinies are presided over by Mr. H. Ambler, familiarly known as "Pap." He carries about 250 pounds of avourdupois, and in consequence is jolly, as are all fat folks. The others resorts are all popular and well conducted.

Two hotels offer accommodations to the general public. The most conveni-ent is the Arlington, conducted by Mr. Geo. Reeb. It is in every way worthy the liberal patronage it receives. Noth-ing is overlooked which can in any way contribute to the comfort and pleasure of its guests.

The stores are well kept and do a satsfactory business. A general air of prosperity is at once remarked by strangers who visit the town and comment from every quarter is very favorable to Lordsburg and her

Still the glorious rains continue, and each additional shower is a still further guarantee of prosperity for our leading industries.
